

About the Anthony D. Turner Scholarship:

Anthony Darryl Turner (October 10, 1961 - November 2, 2022) was an American basketball, football, track and field athlete who attended Central High School in Cheyenne Wyoming. In 1980, during his senior year, he showcased exceptional talent, earning All-State honors in football and basketball while securing State Championship in the 400 and triple jump. He was an avid participant in leading his basketball team to State Championships. He also participated on championship teams in football and track and field.

With his athletic accolades in hand, he would become the first black athlete, male or female, to be awarded the Milward Simpson Award. The Milward Simpson Award is considered the most prestigious award an athlete can earn in their high school career and is awarded to the most outstanding male and female high school seniors in the state of Wyoming.

In honor and loving memory of Anthony Darryl Turner, the Anthony D Turner Scholarship will be awarded to students (See application for details) enrolling in a Historically Black College and University (HBCU) and majoring in a Science, Technology, Engineering, or Mathematics (STEM) degree program in the fall of 2026.

The Anthony D. Turner Scholarship Purpose:

This scholarship was organized in memory of Anthony D. Turner to support community objectives that create positive change, give back to Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) and ensure that students desiring to attend an HBCU have assistance to pursue their educational aspirations.
